HISTORY IN THE MAKING

Ercol is a most unusual company.

Unusual, because they believe that nothing approaches the warmth and integrity of solid wood. Almost alone among the world's makers of fine furniture, Ercol select their own trees from the living woodland, before cutting, storing and kilning them to provide the raw materials for their work.

Unusual, too, because Ercol recognise that a machine can produce a far closer dovetail than any human. But that the human hand can finish that same joint with a sensitivity that no machine could ever copy.

Ercol use technology in every aspect of their furniture making. But they use it to enhance the judgement of the craftsman, not to replace it. Visit the Ercol factory and you'll see machinery – but machinery directed by men to achieve a unique and individual result – drawing out the grain and pattern of each piece of timber.

Man's judgement and the machine's consistency. Solid wood and timeless design. A most unusual company.

Ercol was founded over sixty years ago, by a man with the vision of an artist and the judgement of a business perfectionist. An unusual combination of qualities.

That same combination, those same principles, are evident in each Ercol piece, whether in the formal beauty of an Old Colonial dining set or the light simplicity of a Windsor dining chair.

To see the result of those principles, examine the back of a Windsor cabinet. Touch the inner surfaces of an Old Colonial Mural unit. Or feel for the "join" where the solid beech arm of a Windsor chair is wedged and round-tenoned to the arm stump.

In each case, you'll find the same

The story of a living tradition

degree of finish and care. The same attention to detail. The same attitude to excellence.

The pursuit of excellence is as evident in the design of Ercol furniture as it is in the construction. Ercol furniture will never look dated, simply because it isn't designed to conform with the whims of fashion. The Ercol Old Colonial and Windsor Collections first came into being several decades ago, inspired by design themes that date back through the centuries. And yet every Ercol piece looks as fresh today as it did on the designer's board.

This excellence of design and craftsmanship means that each Ercol piece will endure, without dating, through generations. Combined, the lasting strength of solid wood and the timeless design of Ercol furniture create what some believe to be the finest made furniture in the world.

At Ercol, they call it History in the Making.

ERCOL WINDSOR

Simplicity and timelessness.

Nearly three centuries ago, an unknown Chiltern farmer gave the three-legged stool an extra leg, and formed a bow back by bending a stave of beechwood.

The result was the Windsor chair, a uniquely English piece of furniture whose beauty owed nothing to the furniture of the aristocracy or the influence of the Continent. It was a chair that literally grew from the tough farming land of the Chilterns, and the resilience of the people who lived there.

That chair was the inspiration for the Ercol Windsor range, a collection of chairs, tables, cabinets, occasional tables and upholstered furniture that combines simplicity, timelessness and comfort.

Like that very first Windsor chair, Ercol Windsor puts the integrity of its design and construction on show. The dovetailed solid elm top and sidepiece of a Windsor sideboard create a pattern of interlocking grain that you'll want to touch, lightly, time and again. The individually matched grain of a Windsor dining table top, each piece matched by eye alone, each piece unique, draws the eye like the flames of a blazing fire on a winter's evening.

Each beechwood back for a Windsor chair begins life as a simple stave of wood, trimmed to a length. Long steaming in special retorts makes it, for an instant, as pliable as a length of rope. It is compressed, formed to shape, and carefully dried. The result is a perfect arc of beech, with a strength, spring and resilience that will last through generations of use.

But Ercol have done more than create a more perfect Windsor chair. They have taken the principles of simplicity and fitness for purpose and developed them, using techniques and technology far beyond anything the early craftsmen could have dreamed of.

Ercol's Jubilee chair achieves, for the first time, a beechwood chair back that blends together curves from three different planes in a

The Bodgers

For many years the Windsor chair was kept alive by the "Bodgers" – craftsmen living in the woods around Wycombe, shaping the wood using only the crudest of hand tools and the judgement of their experience. The craftsman shown here is bending a Windsor chair back using the traditional method. (Photo: Wycombe Chair Museum).

Simplicity and timelessness

single beechwood stave. For many years, Ercol's quest was considered impossible; only the development of a stronger-than-steel flexible webbing, made for the NASA space exploration projects, turned the idea into a practical reality.

Central to the Windsor range, central to the entire Ercol philosophy, is the use of solid wood.

Only solid wood doors allow for the recessed moulding for the solid wood handle in a Windsor sideboard door; only solid wood allows the gentler, smoother, curving lines of a Windsor dining table edge. And only solid wood has the strength to do justice to the quality of Ercol craftsmanship, made to last through your lifetime, and your children's lifetimes.

The Ercol Windsor range. Made to last, unaffected by the whims of fashion, from generation to generation, with the unadorned simplicity that lets fitness for purpose and sheer craftsmanship be its own best advocates. It was this simplicity that inspired one Ercol collector to describe his Windsor collection as "light to the eye".

Light to the eye. From the simple Windsor chair to the Windsor cabinets, that phrase sums up the entire collection.

THE WINDSOR

COLLECTION

Furniture that grows with you.

The Windsor Collection is designed for you to choose the piece that suits you best and add to it, as your needs grow.

Some of the first sideboards and cabinets in the Windsor range were designed over twenty years ago. The latest additions have been added to the range within the last few years. Yet combine the two and you'll see no clash of style or mismatch – because each piece is made to the same design philosophy, from the living wood.

Ercol select, store and kiln the prime timber that becomes the raw material for each Windsor chair, table or cabinet. An English Elm, for example, takes over 150 years to reach maturity. In a piece of Windsor furniture, it is immortalised forever.

The Ercol Windsor range is available in a choice of finishes, and is designed to harmonise with many pieces from the Ercol Old Colonial and Saville Collections. In both traditional and modern settings, Ercol Windsor is equally at home.

ERCOL OLD COLONIAL

Inspired by simple virtues.

The Early British Settlers in America were deeply religious people, with an attitude to their God which encompassed every aspect of their lives.

They believed that furniture should be simple and unadorned. Over decoration, they felt, was idolatrous.

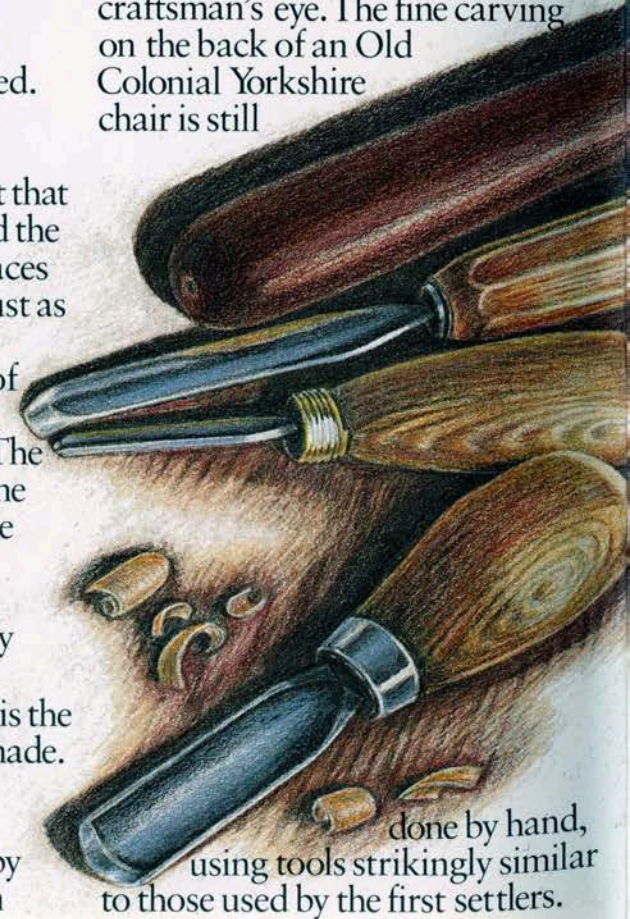

But at the same time they felt that as God sees both the inside and the outside of a cabinet, both surfaces should be made and finished just as carefully.

Ercol's Old Colonial range of furniture takes that spirit and makes it timeless and unique. The Ercol Old Colonial design theme embodies the principles and the attitudes of the early settlers, taking the designs and making them as relevant to 1985 as they were to 1785.

One thing that has changed is the way in which the furniture is made. The limitations of the adze, spokeshave, scratch stock and bow saw have been overcome by sophisticated jigs and precision controlled machines, developed by Ercol. Not just to do the same job quicker, but to do it better.

But there are still many operations that need the sensitivity of the human hand and the judgement of the craftsman's eye. The fine carving on the back of an Old Colonial Yorkshire chair is still done by hand, using tools strikingly similar to those used by the first settlers.

Inspired by simple virtues

need the skill of the human hand, just as it always has.

But for the ultimate proof that Ercol have kept alive the perfectionist principles of the Pilgrim Fathers' furniture, slide open the drawer from an Old Colonial cabinet and examine the quality of construction and finishing on all the surfaces. You'll find Ercol have remained faithful to those original ideals.

And the polishing, staining and finishing still

The early settlers, Ercol believe, would have approved.

THE OLD COLON

IAL COLLECTION

Collectors' pieces.

The beauty of Ercol Old Colonial is that you can start with the simplest piece, secure in the knowledge that it will harmonise with just about any home setting, and then add to it year by year, piece by piece, until your rooms have the Old Colonial look.

Finishes? The Old Colonial range is available either in the rich, dark Traditional finish, or in the lighter shade of Golden Dawn, a finish with the warmth of the sunshine itself shining through the wood. And, of course, you can always choose and mix elements from both the Old Colonial and Windsor ranges, creating a living environment that expresses your tastes and personality exactly.

THE SAVILLE

Craftsmanship and beauty in ash.

Ash is the newest addition to Ercol's chosen timbers. And Saville is the newest addition to Ercol's furniture collections.

Together, they represent not so much a departure as a further exploration of the Ercol philosophy. And although recent in design, Saville upholstery and occasional tables possess that same quality of timelessness that is Ercol's most distinctive hallmark.

COLLECTION

Upholstery in the Ercol tradition.

Ercol have established a tradition of upholstered furniture, combining exceptional comfort with the beauty of a solid wood frame. The Saville Collection continues that tradition, with a simplicity of line that belies the care taken in its construction.

Central to the Saville design is a frame so well-proportioned and pleasing to the eye that the upholstery only serves to enhance it – but a frame so strong that the wear and tear of years will scarcely leave their mark.

The join of arm to seat back on a Saville chair or settee looks as simple and natural as the meeting of branch with tree trunk. Yet it represents one of the highest expressions of the chairmaker's craft, a simple, strong joint that will last for generations.

Saville is a supremely comfortable range of furniture. Deep cushioning, high backs, and long, wide seat cushions give you relaxation and support. Your Saville chairs or settee will be as comfortable to the body as they are pleasing to the eye.

Saville furniture offers you all the comfort of upholstery with the lasting beauty of solid wood. The life of a Saville suite isn't linked to the life of the upholstery fabric, thanks to the easily detachable cushions and removable covers. Instead, your Saville chair or suite will last virtually forever, its solid ash frame an enduring example of beautiful design and British craftsmanship.

ERCOL WOOD FINISHES

From the woodland to your home.

No two pieces of solid wood are identical; grain and colour are as unique as a fingerprint. Because of this, the finishes on this page can only be a guide; each individual piece you buy will have its own pattern of grain and shading.

Elm, ash and beech; the basis for Ercol's furniture collections. Each with its own beauty, its own character.

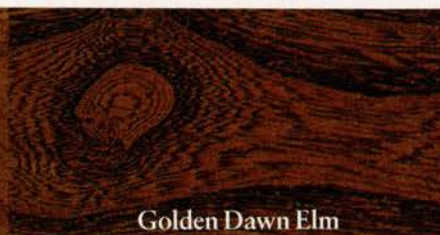

The even, close grain of beech wood makes it ideal for bending and shaping, while ash has a subtlety of grain and shading that makes it the perfect complement to the Saville designs.

Elm has a wildness of grain that makes each table or cabinet a joy to possess . . . but before Ercol developed their own process for stabilising its moisture content, it was thought to be unsuitable for furniture making.

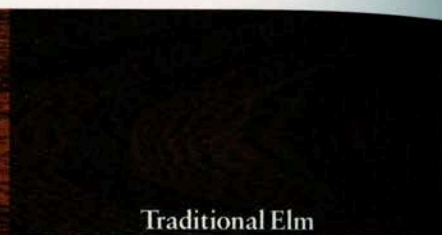

Now, elm's unique graining takes its place as Ercol's contribution to the history of furniture making, and as a part of your home.

WINDSOR

The Windsor cabinet range.

Ercol Windsor cabinets represent perhaps the ultimate expression of the simplicity and fitness for purpose that was evident in the very first Windsor chair.

Each handle, recessed into the solid wood rail of a Windsor cabinet door, takes over fifteen single, separate operations from solid billet to finished item. Yet the result is simple, practical and timeless.

The elm wood used in Windsor cabinets is selected with great care, from the woodland by Ercol buyers, before being matured by air seasoning for a year per inch of timber depth. Then a closely controlled kilning process stabilises the moisture content of the timber, enabling it to be made into Windsor cabinets, sold throughout the world, and sent to the most demanding climatic extremes.

This process is unique to Ercol, a blending of science, craft and patience that allows the furniture maker to realise the potential of this exceptional wood.

CABINETS

In design, too, the simplicity of the Ercol Windsor cabinets only comes as the end result of a complex process, involving both designer and craftsman in the creation of a highly sophisticated piece of furniture.

This patient process of care, thought and craft creates the Windsor cabinet range; a range that in your home will always seem both simple and timeless.

Something you'll never see . . . buy a Windsor cabinet or sideboard, and you'll never guess at the thought and care that goes into each piece. The top and side rails of this cabinet door are joined by a "finger joint" – but a finger joint with a difference. The finished joint is immensely strong.

BINETS - Mural theme

Add to your mural theme as time goes by . . . the magnificent sight of a room furnished with Old Colonial Mural theme recalls the days of living in the grand manner. However, even a single unit makes an excellent focal point, and of course, you can add further pieces as time goes by.

Mural theme in a smaller room . . . even if you haven't the space for a full Mural Theme collection, this piece, flanked by two corner units, makes a lovely Old Colonial set.

An Ercol classic . . . the original Ercol 203 was produced over thirty years ago, yet it remains one of the most definitive examples of Ercol upholstery. The practical, removable cushions with zip covers for easy replacement or refurbishment . . . the beautifully made solid wood frame that remains on view . . . these principles have inspired an entire range of easy chairs and settees.

Whether you find the 203 or the 204 the more comfortable depends on your own shape and form; try both before deciding. And, of course, remember that the fabrics shown on these pages are just a selection from the full range. Ask your Ercol stockist for details.

Some operations will never be achieved by anything other than the sensitivity of the human hand . . . like the hand shaping on the back of this Windsor "Chairmaker's Chair."

WINDSOR UPHOL

Improving on tradition. Early chairmakers had to trim their chair back spindles to length after inserting the bow back, because they found it impossible to control the exact arc of each bow.

Ercol's combination of craft and technology makes it possible to turn each spindle to an exact length on the lathe, even on a chair as intricate and technically demanding as the Jubilee.

CARING FOR YO

Made to last for generations.

Dedicated craftsmanship and solid wood create a range of furniture that will last for decades. And Ercol design and craftsmanship makes it possible for you to keep your furniture looking as good as the day you bought it.

Ercol upholstered furniture, for example, features easily detachable cushions and covers – so you can change fabric to suit your decor, or remove the covers for cleaning. Full cleaning instructions are included on a label sewn into each cover.

Coupled to the near-indestructibility of solid wood, this makes all Ercol furniture – including the upholstered ranges – lasting and beautiful.

Choosing your fabrics.

When choosing Ercol upholstered furniture, don't forget that there's a wide range of fabrics in different patterns and colours available. Choose the fabric to suit your decor, from the swatch samples available at your stockist – and remember, you can always change covers when you redecorate!

New webbing.

Ercol webbing is very strong and resilient; but if after many years, your webbing needs replacement, you'll find that Ercol dowel suspension makes replacement simple.

Upholstery.

Ercol offer a replacement cushion and cover service for all their upholstery, including many pieces made over twenty years ago. Even if your furniture is no longer a part of the current range, the Ercol identification book makes it possible to trace the design you need and supply a replacement.

UR FURNITURE

Ercol Wax.

Solid wood furniture needs occasional feeding with a wax that nourishes the grain of the wood while adding a lustre to the surface. Ercol wax was specifically developed for solid wood furniture, and contains a blend of beeswax and carnauba wax for long-term protection.

Your Ercol stockist.

Your Ercol stockist will be able to supply you with Ercol Furniture Wax, and has full details of the range of Ercol after-sales services, including replacement covers, cushions and webbing.

An Invitation.

The Ercol factory and showrooms in High Wycombe, just off the London Road, include a comprehensive display of the Ercol range. High Wycombe, for many years one of the centres of English furniture making, lies in the heart of the Chiltern Hills, midway between London and Oxford.

You are invited to come and visit us; the showrooms are open Monday to Friday, 9.00 am to 5.00 pm and Saturday mornings from 9.00 to 12.00 noon. Please note, however, that the showrooms are closed in October. We look forward to seeing you soon . . .
